NEW SCHOOL

Planned By Commercial Club.

Officers For Ensuing Year Elected At Enthusiastic Meeting Friday Night.

One of the most enthusiastic meetings ever held by the Jeffersontown Commercial Club took place last Friday evening at Bruce hall. President, R. B. Smith, was in the chair and a large number of interested men of the community were present. Being the first regular meeting in October the annual election of officers took place, and resulted as follows: President—J. C. Alcock. Vice-President—J. C. Bruce. Secretary—C. E. Alcock. Treasurer—D. A. Davis. Executive Committee—J. C. Bowles, R. B. Smith, Harvey Stout, Rev. J. C. Cole and Dr. J. H. Shacklette. W. J. Semmon was appointed chairman of the committee on city and county development and Dr. W. F. Stucky of the committee on public policy.

As members of the Executive Committee the president appointed Dr. J. H. Shacklette chairman of the committee on finance; J. C. Bowles of the committee on entertainment; R. B. Smith on membership; Rev. J. C. Cole on publicity, and Harvey Stout on mercantile and manufacturing.

Glowing reports were made at the meeting concerning the work of the past year, and the members were proud of the success they have made. President Smith was complimented very highly, and the fact that the Club had worked on harmony was favorably commented upon. The treasurer reported everything over one hundred dollars in the treasury.

The past year no members were received into the Club, the whole community having a voice in all the meetings. Beginning with the meeting Friday night the Club will receive members, and the dues will be changed from $2.00 a year to $1.00 a year. Every one present Friday night joined the Club. Others desiring to join are requested to give their names to R. B. Smith, chairman of the membership committee. While the Club is organized into a body and all matters of business will be decided by the bonifide members, that will in no wise prevent the public from taking part in the proceedings on hand from time to time, and many open meetings during the year will be held. The co-operation of all the people is needed and the public urged to help in the work.

The question of building a new school in the Jeffersontown district came up for discussion at the meeting Friday night and the members present were enthusiastic over the proposition. It was suggested that a school rally day be held on the last Sunday afternoon in this month, and the newly elected president named the following committee to arrange for the meeting: W. J. Semmon, Rev. J. C. Cole, Frank Panelli, J. C. Bruce and J. C. Bowles.

The school committee named by the president for the purpose of raising $10,000, or more, for building a new school in Jefferson Heights is composed of the following: H. N. Reubelt, chairman; W. J. Semmon, vice-chairman; A. A. Bridwell, A. M. Gregg, E. R. Sprowl, Rev. J. C. Cole, J. C. Bruce, Frank Panelli, L. C. Owings, J. C. D. Davis and Abe Anderson. The ministers of the town are also requested to give their assistance to the committee. Members of the committee desire the co-operation of everybody in the community in this worthy undertaking.

The meeting adjourned to meet again on Friday night, October 18, at 7:30 o'clock, at which time the public is cordially invited to be present.

Preaching At Cooper Memorial.

There will be the regular preaching services at Cooper Memorial next Sunday. As it is the first appointment for the new Conference year, the pastor would be pleased to meet the entire membership.

Don't fail to read "Both Sides of the Shield," by Archie W. Butt. It is a short and interesting story by the famous hero of the Titanic.

Parcel Post Summary.

In response to many inquiries for information, Senator Jonathan B. Bourne, Jr., chairman of the Senate Committee on Post-offices and Post Roads, has prepared the following summary of the divisions of the new parcel post law which will become effective January 1, 1913:

Any article is mailable if not over 11 pounds in weight not more than 72 inches in length and girth combined, nor likely to injure the mails or postal equipment or employes.

Flat rate 1 cent per ounce up to four ounces, regardless of distance. Above four ounces, rates are by the pound or fraction thereof, and varying with distance as follows:

	Each lb.	Additional lb.	lb.
Rural route and city delivery	.05	.01	.15
20-mile zone	.05	.03	.30
150-mile zone	.06	.04	.44
300-mile zone	.07	.05	.57
600-mile zone	.08	.06	.68
1,000-mile zone	.09	.07	.79
1,400-mile zone	.10	.08	.1.00
1,800-mile zone	.11	.10	1.11
Over 1,800 miles	.12	.12	1.33

The Postmaster General may make provision for indemnity, insurance and collection on delivery, with additional charges for service, and with the consent of the Interstate Commerce Commission after investigation, modify rates, weights and zone distances, when experience has demonstrated the need thereof.

SEATONVILLE.

Injured Child Improving—All the Personal and Social News of Interest.

Seatonville, Oct. 7.—Corn cutting, gathering nuts, making sugar-molasses, etc., is the order of the day. The weather is ideal, a few frosty mornings but everything is green except the leaves of the trees are dropping on their beautiful autumn dress of different colors and the country is beautiful.

Mrs. Tom Cole and daughter, Mrs. Jessie Storch, entertained quite a number of their friends and relatives on Sunday.

Miss Levada Bogard visited her uncle, Dr. J. W. Turner, recently.

We are glad to note that little Myrtle King, eldest daughter of Mr. Will King is improving after a severe fall received at school one day last week in jumping from the school lot to county road, in some way fell with all force on her head, knocked one of her permanent teeth out by the root, broke another off and fear was entertained that Mrs. was seriously hurt but glad indeed it was no worse.

Miss Ethel Mills and brother entertained last Monday night some of their pupils. Those present were Misses Lucille and Elizabeth Neel, Katie Leah Host and Ruby Wheeler and Mr. Homer Brown.

Mrs. Noel Jean, of Danville, is visiting relatives in this neighborhood. Mr. Jean came down last Saturday evening and spent till Monday morning with his mother and brother. On Sunday all of Mrs. John Jean's children, nine in number, ate dinner with her save one, Dr. John Jean, of Keene, who could not leave.

Tuesday Mrs. Noel Jean, Mr. Fore Jean and wife, Mr. M. S. Jean, Mrs. Frank Jean, Mrs. G. S. Mills and daughters, Sarah and Mrs. Nettie Frederick, Mrs. John Jean and daughter, Leila, dined with Mrs. K. S. Mills.

A few neighbors and friends attended the dedication of the Christian church at Jeffersontown last Sunday and enjoyed both sermons, especially the one in the afternoon by E. L. Powell of First Christian church of Louisville.

Mrs. Jim Timnell and Mrs. Ernest Wiggins spent a delightful day with Mrs. Mose Bonds last night. Miss Myrtle Rummage visited Miss Myrtle Johnson last Friday night, and Saturday they spent in Louisville shopping.

The Seatonville box party was a success. The teacher and children there, their friends and patrons for their support.

Mr. Willie Mills and wife, Mr. I. N. Mills and wife, of Louisville, visited their brother, Mr. K. S. Mills and family recently.

OCTOBER 27

School Rally Day In Jeffersontown.

Noted Speakers And Brass Band To Entertain Crowd—Committee at Work.

The committee named by the president of the Jeffersontown Commercial Club for the purpose of raising money to build a school on the beautiful five acres of ground in Jefferson Heights, which was donated to the local district by the Jefferson Heights Land Company, provided a building costing not less than $10,000 was erected thereon within five years from June, 1911, met Monday night and organized. H. N. Reubelt, president of the Jefferson County Bank, is chairman and treasurer; W. J. Semmon vice-chairman, and Rev. J. C. Cole secretary. Other members of the committee are R. B. Smith, Harvey Stout, Abe Anderson, D. A. Davis, J. C. Bowles, L. C. Owings, J. C. Bruce, E. R. Sprowl, A. M. Gregg, Frank Panelli and Arch A. Bridwell, trustee of the Jeffersontown school.

It was decided at the meeting Monday night to hold a big school rally on the school grounds Sunday afternoon, October 27, beginning at 3 o'clock. A brass band has already been secured for the occasion and some of the most prominent men and speakers in the State will be invited to deliver addresses. Among those to be asked to speak are Col. Henry Watterson, Messrs. C. H. McFerran, J. M. Atherton, Barksdale Hamlett, State Superintendent of Schools; Orville J. Stivers, County Superintendent; George Leathers, T. J. Costello and others. The rally will be thoroughly advertised and a large crowd is expected. In the event of bad weather the meeting will be held in one of the churches.

It will be remembered that a little over a year ago the Jefferson Heights Land Company, John B. McFerran, president, and E. R. Sprowl, secretary, bought thirty acres of land, situated at the edge of Jeffersontown, from Mrs. Sallie Blankenship, divided it up in building sites, spent about $15,000 in building streets and beautifying the property, and sold all but five acres at auction. This five acres, which is the most beautiful of this lovely subdivision, was donated to the Jeffersontown school district, provided a school building costing not less than $10,000 was erected within five years. In addition to this, Mr. McFerran offered to give his part of the net proceeds from the sale of the lots to the furnishing of the new school building.

During the past year there has been talk of bonding Jeffersontown for the purpose of building model schools in all sections of the county, and for that reason the citizens here have taken no steps toward building the school. Since it is too late to consider that proposition this year, the Jeffersontown Commercial Club has undertaken to raise the $10,000 by subscription, and the school committee has been named to have charge of the work. The people here are thoroughly interested in the proposition and there is no doubt but what the money will be readily contributed. The meeting October 27th is for the purpose of placing the matter before the people in general.

Birthday Celebrated.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Crandall gave a dinner in honor of the latter's mother, Mrs. Nancie Farmer, who is eighty-four years of age. Those present were two of her brothers, R. A. Foster, of Fisherville, and J. T. Foster, of Louisville, three children, Jacob and James of Louisville, and Mrs. W. H. Crandall, and sister-in-law, Mrs. J. T. Foster, and daughter, in-law, Mrs. Jacob Farmer, of Louisville, and granddaughter, Miss Birdie Kilmarlin, and niece, Miss Ruby Foster, of Fisherville, and nephew, Robert Harris, of South Park, and son-in-law, W. H. Crandall, and others. After a bountiful dinner was served all spent a most enjoyable evening talking of old times and childhood days. We wish Mrs. Farmer many more happy returns of the day.

LIFE SENTENCE

Sidney Parrish, Who Kills Sister And Burns House, Pleads Guilty of Crime.

Sidney Parrish, aged fourteen years, a negro, who killed his sister and set fire to the house; burning it over her head, near Jeffersontown on the Tucker Station road about two months ago, will serve the remainder of his life in the penitentiary. When the indictment was read to Parrish he was guilty or not guilty and he replied that he was guilty.

After consultation between Judge Gregory and Commonwealth's Attorney Huffaker the case was submitted to the jury with a recommendation from the Commonwealth's Attorney that the boy, on account of his youth, be given a life sentence in the penitentiary. The jury returned a verdict accordingly. The lad appeared unconcerned and did not seem to realize the enormity of the crime with which he was charged or the extent of the punishment inflicted.

It was through the efforts of Deputy Sheriff S. E. Potts that Parrish was arrested the second time, after he had been acquitted on the charge of murder. Mr. Potts, believing the negro guilty from the evidence and circumstances, notified Assistant State Fire Marshal Phil Hendricks and the two men arrested the boy on the charge of arson. On account of his age he will be sent to the School of Reform at Lexington and remain in it 21 years of age; then taken to the penitentiary. Mr. Potts will leave tomorrow with Parrish for Lexington.

GAME WARDEN

Will Enforce Game And Fish Law.

Dr. D. A. Floore Appointed Warden For State—Letter From Commission.

As the following letter is of vital interest to our readers, we publish it in full. It relates to the work of the Game and Fish Commission and the law now in effect. Persons hunting on land that doesn't belong to them will be required to pay a license of $1.00.

The letter addressed to Dr. D. A. Floore, game warden here, is self explanatory and is as follows:

"Sept. 18, 1912.—Dr. D. A. Floore: I would suggest that you go to your County Clerk with a small memorandum book and get a list of all licenses issued, arrange them alphabetically and in this way you will know who has a license to hunt and this will make your duties easier. I would also suggest that you have your county papers published that you are a warden for the State of Kentucky and that you intend to enforce the law. Tell them that it is unlawful to hunt off their own land without a license and that it is unlawful to kill rabbits and squirrels from the 15th of September to the 15th of November, but rabbits can be caught with dogs or snares and sold at any time; but if rabbits are had in possession showing marks of having been shot, the person so possessing them is just as guilty as if they had killed them themselves.

"It is unlawful to shoot quail or pheasant before November 15, and you must enforce this law. If they kill, or shoot at with such intent, they are guilty of violation of the law. It is unlawful to shoot shell-birds at any time, or any song or insectivorous birds, except where they are destroying crops.

"It is unlawful to take fish except with hook and line, trot line or dip net, or spunge hook.

"Do everything you can to educate the people and effort to see that we do not want to indict them for violation of the law, but if they do violate it they must suffer the consequences. If I can serve you at any time please call on me.

Very truly,

J. QUINCY WARD, Exec. Agt. Game and Fish Com.

You might also say for me that I have no desire to prosecute any one.

and hope all who expect to hunt will secure their license and save themselves trouble, as I will certainly make every effort I can to enforce the law.

D. A. FLOORE, Fish and Game Warden for Kentucky.

Angry Cat Attacks Child.

Elwood, Ind.—Angered because the two-year-old child of Thomas Lohr had crept to the saucer of milk from which it had been drinking and had attempted to appropriate the contents, a family cat attacked the child, tearing several deep scratches in the little one's face. One of the animal's claws struck the child's right eye, piercing the ball and causing injuries which will cause loss of sight.

PUBLIC HALL

Planned By Buechel Commercial

Club At Meeting Monday Night.

The Buechel Commercial Club held a very enthusiastic meeting Monday night, a large crowd being in attendance. Among the many improvements planned by this lively organization is a club room or public hall, similar to the one at Okolona. McClure Hoke, Chas. J. Fegenbush and E. C. Roy were named on a committee to investigate the matter and report at the next meeting of the Club.

If plans now under way are carried out a large hall will be erected at Buechel and in addition to being used by the Club for regular meetings will be used for public entertainments and dances. A building of this kind has been needed for some time and as the Buechel Commercial Club has a way of getting everything it wants the new hall is assured. McClure Hoke, the well known contractor, is president of the Club, and Jos. Winthorpe, manager of the Buechel Ice, Coal and Storage Company, is the hustling secretary. The Club meets every first and third Monday nights in each month.

MAKE THE CHILD A COMRADE

Alcoholism of Parents Altogether Too Frequent a Mistake, According to This Writer.

The peril of the homelessness lies in the fact that parents do not take the pains to understand their children. They are out of sympathy with them. They do not encourage anything like camaraderie. They reject or repress any attempts at exchanging confidences. The father forgets that he was once a boy. Having lost the enthusiasm of boyhood, he looks with contempt upon the temptations and follies of youth. How is he treating his boy? He condemns his associates in unmeasured terms; he ridicules his cherished plans. When in boyish admiration, the lad exploits his presidential candidate, the father jeers at the choice and knocks the idol from its pedestal. Does this father realize what he has done? He has practically rendered his boy homeless. That boy will leave home to find sympathetic companionship. In short, he will form the nucleus of a street-corner gang, and be happy in it.—Suburban Life.

WHALE THAT WEARS A BEAK

On a South African Beach Most Peculiar Specimen Was Found Stranded.

Some time ago a specimen of Layard's beaked whale was found stranded on the beach near Port Elizabeth, South Africa. This find was of great importance to zoology, because hitherto very little has been accurately known concerning this strange inhabitant of the ocean.

The specimen found near Port Elizabeth and since mounted in the museum there is a male nineteen feet two inches long, Harpe's Weekly states. From the lower jaw project upward two tusks with two sharp enameled teeth. The creature could open its beak only four or five inches at the outer end, and its gullet was so narrow that it is evident that the animal devoured only very small fish and seaweed.

The beaked whale is said to furnish oil of an exceptionally fine quality.

UNANSWERABLE.

The chairman of the campaign committee was trying to get a big contribution out of Mr. Muniborn. "Why should I give you anything?" demanded the latter. "Your platform denounces me almost by name."

"I know it does," rejoined the chairman, "but I'm giving you an excellent opportunity to return good for evil and thereby heap coals of fire on my head."

WORKING SOME.

"And so your boy plays in the town band now, I hear," said the city man.

"Well," replied the man from the suburbs, "I can hardly say he plays, he works. He is the bass-drummer, you know."

BUNNY HUG

Turkey Trot And Arizona Anguish Barred at Confederate Home.

Courier-Journal: They cringed not when cannon balls flew all about them at Gettysburg and Manassas and Perryville; they pressed to the front in many a battle and saw carnage and riot, while warfare unfolded many terrors before them—but That was many years ago.

At that time it was not known that men were to be born whose attainments would include the devising of devilish, excruciating and sundry dances of a type which would have caused untold anguish in the good old Quaker days.

Also, that was before the Confederate Home at Pewee Valley was established.

Therefore, the battle-scarred warriors, who are seeking repose and peace at the Pewee Valley retreat, had not expected that the time would come when, within the quiet walls of the L. Z. Duke Hall at the home, to the tune of aggravating, agonizing, tantalizing, fascinating airs, full of jerks and jumps and grunts and groans, the young people of the upcoming generation would disport themselves in devious dances of the so-called "Bunny Hug" and "Turkey Trot" variety.

It must be explained that for some time the Duke Hall has been rented out occasionally for dances, parties and dinners, furthermore, that for some time novelty-loving youngsters are said to have been indulging in these ambitious dances, and also that the aforesaid warriors who have seen many horrors have discovered another upon which they must needs call a halt.

War, as Gen. Sherman said was well, he said what it was—but the "Bunny Hug" and the "Turkey Trot" and the "Arizona Anguish" proved far more nerve-racking than the aforesaid war.

Hereafter only the decorous two-step, the modest minuet, the Virginia reel and the innocent waltz and such other tried terpsichorean exercises which have the approval of time will be permitted.

Col. Henry George, superintendent at the home, placed the ban on the new dances Saturday.

Those who desire such novelties as these dances may find appeasement on the "Barbary Coast," in the music halls of the Bowery and in such other places where such dances are permitted, but not in Duke Hall.

J. C. Bowles, of Jeffersontown, recently purchased from J. P. Pound, of Clark, eleven head of best cattle at an average of $81 a head. This is said to be the best prices obtained for cattle in some time.

Child Dies.

Little Edward Mohr, aged eighteen months, son of Mrs. Kate Mohr, who met with an accident of unknown origin last Saturday week at the home of Mr. W. F. Hunsinger, passed away at 9:30 Tuesday night. For several days after the accident he was thought to be doing nicely, and his recovery seemed assured, but he grew worse the latter part of last week, and although every thing that could be, was done for the little fellow, he grew steadily worse, suffering intensely until he became unconscious. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. H. N. Ruebalt at Mr. Hunsinger's at two-thirty o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Fortunes in Faces.

There's often much truth in the saying "her face is her fortune," but it's never said where pimples, eruptions, blotches, or blemishes disfigure it. Impure blood is back of them all, and shows the need of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They promote health and beauty. Try them. 25¢ at all druggists.

REDUCE THE COST OF KURFEES PAINT

reduces the cost of painting because it requires fewer gallons for the job. It covers more surface and covers it better, for the simple reason that it contains more White Lead than any other paint.

It's made of:
Pure White Lead 80%
Pure Zinc Oxide 20%
100% Pure Lead and Zinc

That's more Lead than you will find in any other paint, and there is as much difference in Kurfees Paint and other paints as there is in day and night. The minute you stick a brush into Kurfees you'll appreciate its very heavy, leaded body, which gives it that superior spreading and hiding power.

If you want the best that money can buy, come and let us sell you Kurfees.

The Pines was a distance of some five miles from the town limits. It was appropriately named, for after we entered the grounds we passed into a primeval forest of tall and stately pine trees. The long needles waved in the wind, and there was a musical cadence in the branches, different from the song we hear in the northern forests. The ground was covered with pine straw, and it might have been falling there and ungathered for generations, so thickly did it seem to lie. We crossed a branch over which there had been built an old stone bridge, now covered with vines.

"That, sir, was built as a memorial to General Ogilthorpe," said my old host, seeing my curiosity, for the bridge was out of all proportion to the size of the stream. "When the general paid his memorable visit to this place it was right there, sir, that I drew from his pocket a small flask and after offering my grandfather a dram took one himself. You must know, sir, that the great philanthropist was supposed to be a teetotaler and certainly never took a drink in the presence of any of his colonists for fear of setting them a bad example. That little act shows as nothing else could the great confidence and esteem in which he held my worthy progenitor."

I was anxious to hear more of this episode, but feared to get the colonel started on what was evidently to him an important bit of family history and which I suspected strongly had become a hobby. "Some day Ellen shall walk here with you," he added, "and show you the inscriptions on it. You will find them interesting."

Ellen again. I was beginning to feel the keenest anxiety to meet this Ellen and to wonder what she could be—half cook and half maid, or what? I began to think from the little bits I had picked up concerning her during the day. We passed from the pine trees into a long avenue of oaks, and when we emerged from this the Pines in all its solitary and lonely grandeur stood before us, rich in coloring from the setting sun that bathed it in a crimson glow. As I looked at it in wonderment it might have been a dream out of the past that had taken shape and floated now across my vision. Its front and sides were flanked with colonial columns of the Doric type, and the low vines running at right angles to the body of the house were covered with vines which almost hid the low porch.

This porch was supported by diminutive columns of the same graceful curves. I was so moved by the beauty of the whole at first that I failed to note that some of the columns were on the point of falling and that others were crumbling to decay. The plaster had fallen from many of them, showing a dull red brick behind. But these evidences of decay gave an additional charm to the scene, augmenting its perfection as a whole and keeping it in perfect harmony with its own age and the neighborhood of that section. It seemed to typify the generation then living there and fighting against its own decay. I was awakened from my dreamy thought by hearing the colonel calling loudly for some one to get the horse. Presently there came from around one of the wings a little, dark, naked urchin, who said that Mrs. Turpin had gone to the Trigg funeral, and that Miss Ellen was cooking this dinner, and that "Young Mamma" had not come from the fields.

"Then tell Miss Ellen, Sammie, to put another finger in the pie, for I have brought a guest home with me. Now, sir," turning to me, "if you will come with me, I will show you your room and bid you make yourself at home."

We passed under the huge doorway and entered a large hall which was as wide as any room I could remember in my grandfather's house in New England. It was almost bare of furniture. There were two or more large mahogany sofas which had once been lined with black horsehair, but this latter was so much worn that the matting showed beneath it in places, and to others it was patched with bright-colored calico and sometimes with pieces of faded silk. The colonel led me up a flight of stairs, bare of carpet, but clean and polished.

"You will be right over the billiard room," he said, opening a door which led into a beautifully lighted room on the east side, standing in the center of which was a large, canopied bed. "If you care for billiards," he continued, "I will wager that Ellen can give you ten points and beat you out. And now, sir, we have dinner at 6 o'clock. For Bud likes to have his dinner when he comes from the field instead of in the middle of the day, as he says he feels more like a gentleman. Until then, sir, I hope you rest well."

I had not asked the question before, but now summoned the courage to say:

"Colonel, there is one little thing I should like to have settled. Business as business, you know," I said, laughing, for I did not like the look of dignity he suddenly assumed at the mention of business. "In justice to both of us I ought to ask you how much will be my board by the week?"

Had General Ogilthorpe himself arisen to confront the colonel I do not think he could have shown more surprise than he did at my simple question. He drew himself up with a dignity which was truly commanding, and, speaking in a suppressed voice, he asked:

"When have the Turpins adopted the custom of taking money from their guests, I beg you to tell me, sir? If you were not a kinsman of my dear friends, the Palmers, I would at once show you the door."

"I stood covered with confusion. I humbly beg your pardon if I have offended you, colonel, and I am greatly mortified to have so deeply wounded you, but until this moment I thought you had been kind enough to receive me as a boarder. I felt grateful enough for that, and you know I do not put me under obligations which I can never repay, but which I have no right to accept. But you yourself are somewhat at blame," I added quickly, for I saw that he was still deeply offended. "You told me that I might get board in one of the farmhouses and immediately offered me the hospitality of your room."

"The Turpins are not farmers, sir; they are planters, and if we have to cook our own meals we serve them with no less degree of hospitality than when a nigger stood at each door at the beck and call of everybody in the room."

"Colonel Turpin, I hope you will forgive me my stupid blunder or else let me leave your house at once."

His face relaxed into a smile, and, extending his hand, he grasped mine. "As you say, sir, I am not blameless in the matter. But we are getting a little sensitive down here. And now forget all about it, and what is more, don't ever mention it to Ellen or to Bud, for they would think their old father had been lacking in dignity, else a mistake of this kind were impossible."

When he left me I felt a prey to regrets over my stupid blunder and, what seemed worse, my apparent deception concerning the relationship with the Kentucky Palmers. As long as I thought I was going to go to an inn of some kind or to pay my board I had not thought it worth while to explain the mistake into which the colonel had fallen. I felt it to be too late now to confess that in all likelihood there was no kitchen at all or, if any, so remote as to form no ties of blood and certainly not to earn for me any consideration on that score. Feigning, like a culprit, I threw myself on the bed, determined to leave the Pines at the first moment I could do so without offending my kind old host.

When the pickaninny, Sam, knocked at my door to tell me that dinner was served he found me prepared to do justice to anything in the way of food which might be placed before me. I had been traveling all day, to all intents and purposes without anything to eat. While anxious to satisfy my hunger, yet it was with some feeling of embarrassment that I started downstairs to meet the colonel. He was in the foot of the steps and, motioning me to follow him, led me to a room in one of the side wings. There I saw three sofas, covered with plush, the outside, with their rims completely hidden by long and graceful bunches of mant. Without sitting down he handed me one and took the other himself.

"Of late years, Mr. Palmer," he said, "we have abandoned the time honored custom of drinking mint juleps before our dinner, but in order that you may feel perfectly at home and rest certain that I feel as our guests, on account of your natural mistake I have taken the liberty of asking you to join me in one of these," holding the goblet as if pledging my health.

"This delicious fluid should be sipped only while sitting, but as the family is assembled for dinner I will ask you to forego the pleasure of a chat over our juleps and drink standing. I pledge your health, sir, and that of your kinfolks, the friends of my young manhood."

"It was the first julep I had ever tasted, and I shall never forget with what delicious force the straw threw the liquor against the roof of my mouth. The goblets were soon emptied, and I was ushered into the parlor, where we were evidently expected, for the occupants were standing."

"Mr. Palmer, let me present you to my wife, Mrs. Turpin; to my daughter, Ellen, and to my son, Howell Cobb, whom I hope you will soon address as Bud. Ellen, my dear, bid our guest, Mr. Palmer, welcome, for he is a kinsman of my old friends the Palmers of Kentucky, of whom you have so often heard me speak."

"Any friend whom my father brings to us is welcome, Mr. Palmer, but we make you doubly welcome on account of his side which kind our house to yours."

She extended her hand, which I took and for the first time I felt that I had frank, open face. I did not think her beautiful then, but I was unprepared for the subtle ease and grace of manner and the exquisite polish of her hand, and the patrician face that was turned to me without any sign of embarrassment whatever. Her eyes were large and brown and her hands small and white. These were the only things about her that sank into my memory.

"Mr. Palmer, father has taken us somewhat by surprise, and you must excuse many things, but we make you right welcome, and when you set tired or playing billiards with Ellen and talking politics with father I have a good dog and gun at your disposal."

The young man who was addressing me was tall and big, and when I had first entered I had mistaken him for a lumberman, but now he was making me welcome with the ease of a courier. Mrs. Turpin was a small, delicate looking woman, but was gowned in a faded royal purple velvet, evidently the remnant of an anterior date.

"You young people can make plans at the table. In the meantime Ellen's roast is getting cold," said the colonel. Then I remembered about the cooking and thought for a moment what a sacrifice it would be to devour anything prepared by those lovely hands, but a sudden convulsive pang of hunger banished my sentimental thought, and I offered my arm gladly to Mrs. Turpin, while she led the way to the dining room. It was, in fact, an immense hall, wainscoted with oak, but the walls above the paneling were stained and, as far as I could see, even moldy. It was a gloomy looking place, but the table was made bright and cheerful by two big chandeliers, and the table was a profusion of dishes.

"Mr. Palmer, let me present you to my daughter, Ellen."

some silver, others of rare old china, and, as I saw later, there was hardly one of the latter which was not broken or chipped, but each steamed with some savory vegetable or meat, and I soon fell in the way of handing plates around the table and helping others from the dishes in front of or near me, just as we were wont to do in the railroad eating houses in New England when I was a boy. The conversation was easy and homelike, and I saw at once that I was not looked upon as a stranger. No questions were asked me about myself, for which I was thankful, and I soon saw, too, that the colonel did not intend to relate the details of our meeting that morning or to account to the other members of the family for his sudden impulse to invite me to become a guest at the Pines. So, as if by mutual consent, we refrained from making any reference to the matter, and I determined to leave it to the colonel to make any explanations which he might think to be best.

OCTOBER.

A scene at Armageddon,
A warrior in tin,
And every now and then a shout
Emerging from the din.
Some folks fancy Woodrow,
And others fancy Bill,
And others still for Theodore
Are very hopeful still.
A table and a pitcher,
A speaker on his perch,
And here and there someone asleep,
The same as in a church.
The miracle of party,
And the peridy of doubt,
With the usual statistics
Till the watchman puts him out.
A woman with a banner,
Another with a drum,
And another with a curtain pole
Revolving on her thumb.
Some folks say it's nothing,
But others think it is.
And like as not it won't be long
Till man is getting his.
The toll mouse and the donkey,
The elephant, the zoo,
The trusts against the people,
And the false against the true;
But do not get excited,
Or take it very hard,
For they'll all lie down together
In the same barnyard.

October was originally the eighth month of the Romans, but it brought watermelons and pumpkins in at the same time, and Numa Pompilius, who liked both, pushed it along to tenth place to keep from foundering himself. A Bull Moose party formed to dethrone him, but he held on, and was able in the end to pull the skulls of his enemies around on a string on Halloween, with a candle inside, from which we have our present-day Jack-o'-Lantern.

The zodiacal sign for October is Scorpio, meaning the Scorpion. It typifies the manner in which candidates sting one another in the last few weeks of the campaign. October has always been the favorite month of the year. That more people have always married in June has only been explained upon the theory that inasmuch as they are undertaking the battle of life together they probably consider that it would be just as well to begin at once upon the mosquitoes.

The gentle spirit of the Fall
Will come to glorify the air,
And the football player will appeal
The population with his hair.
The referee will climb the poles
And sound his shrill official toot,
And the moth will drill a few more hoes
In everybody's winter suit.

There is no glory to compare with that awaiting just ahead, when the consumer gets in the air, and the saffron is flaming red. A million harps have only twanged upon the glories of the time, but a poet still were rather hanged than not intone his little rhyme.

You may destroy his throbbing lyre
And pitch him headlong in the sea, but death alone can quench the fire that underlies his melody. He'll string a horse hair on a pole, and even stronger than before uplift the passion of his soul with getting back upon the shore.

At such a time, though you may laugh,
It would as probably avail
To catch the acrobatic calf
And tie a brick upon his tail.

One whiff of Autumn's his nose,
And lowering his playful head,
His rear appendage still uprose,
Though weighed with a keg of lead.
You can't restrain the joy of Fall that palpitates in living things, nor hope to dissipate the thrill in which a poetaster sings. The calf will kick and buck around, the colt will cut a few high jinks, and the poet's sither will resound, despite what anybody thinks.

The better quality of air
Will speed the presidential race, and a cocklebur placed here and there
Will help accelerate the pace.

The troubled earth will gently sway
Beneath the violent attack,
And the trusts will hustle corn and hay
Along the fence inside the track.

The eager riders, all inclined at least resistance to the air, will lash their quadrupeds behind, and feel them fagging in despair. The hungry brutes will smell the hay, and catch the fragrance of the corn, and in their torture curse the day that saw the first reformer born. Ill ruck the time when plenty shows a helping hand on every side, and still nobody ever throws a bite for being villified. It never was that way before in any other race they ran, and many a good and lusty roar will sound the peridy of man.

But that's the kind of race it is, say any creature what he will, and each man's chance is only his with somehow keeping at it still. A strictly uncorrupted trod, with empty stomachs all around, is what they entered, and they've got to make their chargers cover ground. If Rockefeller and his set desire a little sporting bout, why let them wait a bit to get their trust-fed stepples, chasers out. We're having one—perhaps the first we ever had, and while it toils, we'll take a care to have a gun upon the pirate and his spoils.

The Hunter's Moon will sail the sky
To establish the human race,
And men will trail the pumpkin pie
Through many a city eating place.
The cider sign will grace the store,
To offer men its ancient boon,
And customers will bulge the door
With getting out of the saloon.

The twelfth of the month will be the 420th anniversary of the discovery of America, and Messrs. Rockefeller, Morgan and Carnegie will give a dinner on that date to Christopher Columbus, who found it for them. The 27th will be the anniversary of the landing in this country of the man who put the Penn in Pennsylvania, and it will be celebrated in an appropriate manner by everyone who has not the important syllable in anything since. The moon will be full on the 25th, and the password for the month will be applebutter. And then November will renew, with somewhat cooler weather, and the poor consumer sewing two thin union suits together.

Deep Tilling.

Plowing is the foundation for the growth of any crop. Superior tillage is the most effective method of bringing the dormant plant food of the underlying soil into active service. If we would raise an even, uniform and standard quality, we must of necessity prepare an even, uniform and standard seed bed. This can only be secured by plowing deep and thoroughly pulverizing the furrow slice and leaving it in perfect contact with the subsoil, so that all of the moisture below the furrow slice is available through capillarity. When this has been accomplished, the roots from every grain of seed have an equal chance, one with the other. None of them are stunted because of coming in contact with hard lump conditions, which would serve to check their growth, but all have the free and unrestricted use of the soil. The results will be in strict accord with the food prepared in this soil. Many have plowed their ground two and one-half, three or possibly four inches deep, scattered the seed and then sat down to wait for the harvest, repeating this method year after year, with a gradual decrease in the average yield until they have fairly pulled stakes and gone out west, again in search of virgin soil, that they may renew their mining operations there.

Why Mastic Paint?

BECAUSE
FIRST—It's pure—every atom of it—real paint manufactured from the finest raw material obtainable.
SECOND—It is made of pure white lead, re-inforced with zinc oxide in the correct proportion, and pure linseed oil. Will outwear, two to one, any straight lead or hand-mixed paint.
THIRD—Warranted to contain no adulteration. The formula "THE KIND THAT LASTS" appears on every can. Guaranteed to give satisfaction.
FOURTH—Being full-bodied and machine ground, less MASTIC is required to paint a given surface than any other kind of paint or lead and oil. A SAVING OF MANY DOLLARS TO THE OWNER OF THE BUILDING.
FIFTH—In time to come, when painting is again desirable, a surface previously coated with MASTIC remains in perfect condition for repainting.

Specify MASTIC PAINT for your home and secure a beautiful hard, enamel-like finish that will resist best the smoke and gases of the city, the hot sun and severe weather exposure. MASTIC Outside Gloss White is the very whitest house paint made. MASTIC Paint does not discolor and go flat like keg lead in oil, nor peel and crack like the cheap ready mixed paint.

The Climbers

Flora, Dear: Your letter rather plucked me. Your accusations were unavailing for I am not secretive; neither have I evaded your questions purposely. Judson Barnett, or "Jack," as we now call him, is a wonderfully clever, interesting man, and I admire him exceedingly. You may safely gratify your curiosity with the information that I am not in love with him.

Weren't you surprised to receive my card postmarked Switzerland? This has been rightly designated the "playground of Europe." I have had such a perfect time and delight to think that but one more week remains to enjoy the scenery.

I have actually climbed five giant mountains of the Alps. Aren't you envious? Our party arrived at Lucerne during the late afternoon, and when I viewed those majestic mountains, hedged about with mystery—the glaciers filling the neighboring valleys—the snowpeaks, whose white outline against the sky was cameo-like in its clearness, I longed to reach their summits. Jack and a few others voiced the same desire, and our consuming ambition became to add notches to our alpenstocks.

Early next morning we ascended high to see the sun rise. What an inspiring sight! Far below flowed the River Reuss, and there was Lucerne surrounded by pine and alpine toll houses, resembling a "fair city" held in the fastness of the mountains by some powerful enchanter.

The pink-gold light of dawn heralded the approach of day touched each tip of the towers, then spread over the flowery fields of the valley. This seemed strange when we were surrounded by snow fields.

The following week we went to Lake Brienz and crossed to Interlaken. Here the incomparable Jungfrau loomed invitingly in the distance. The mountain would not come to us, so, like Mohammed, we went to the mountain. At Lauterbrunnen village we took the cable cars, which lifted us 2,200 feet to the famous little alpine village of Murren.

Here we had a wonderful view of Jungfrau. This maiden of the Alps appeals strangely to one. She is surpassed in beauty by Monte Rosa and in grandeur by the Matterhorn. To me she is the loveliest of mountains.

We reached the summit at sunset. I never imagined such wonderful coloring possible! The evening clouds and shadows gathered, and finally night enshrouded the peaks with its dark, silent veil. We descended halfway down the mountain and spent the night at a picturesque Swiss Inn, where we sat around the huge fireplace relating strange experiences.

The following day we journeyed to Chillon's Lake Geneva, with its romantic castle of Byron, spending two weeks there. Then we came to Zermatt. I am a real mountaineer now.

You should see me attired in a rough suit, with spiked shoes, green hat adorned with a sprig of edelweiss and my "ruck-sack" strapped to my back. I somewhat resemble Pilgrim on his rough and weary way. First we ascended Monte Rosa, and two days later braved the Matterhorn. I did not enjoy climbing the mountain, and you will hardly blame me when you have heard all.

Six of us started out, tied to the same guide. After climbing for hours and hours I became frightfully fatigued and while scaling a rugged crag I slipped and turned my ankle again. To proceed was impossible. The guide told us of several built to shelter storm-bound climbers, instructing us to remain there until returned, and not to attempt a descent. Jack assisted me—in fact, I was almost helpless—to the hut, a quarter of a mile from the path. He built a fire and bandaged my ankle, giving me instant relief, and I fell asleep.

I awoke several hours later, to find a tempting spread, the contents of our ruck-sack. We were ravenously hungry and ate everything in sight. At three o'clock a terrific snowstorm, in all its fiendish fury, burst upon the mountain. I tried my best not to appear frightened, but as the hours wore on and inky darkness enveloped us, I wondered if the guide had forgotten to come. All night long we strained our ears for any sound which might foretell the approach of the party. Morning found the storm still raging. Jack showed signs of worry. Our food was entirely gone. At two o'clock the sky cleared and we started to descend. We hadn't gone far when we were met by a searching party. Two of them escorted us to Zermatt.

It was a wonderful experience, but I haven't the slightest desire to repeat it.

Jack just brought the dreadful news that four of the original party were lost in the storm. What a horrible fate!

Tonight we stood upon the balcony and watched the calm sunset lights burn upon the Breithorn's crest. One last, faint, rose glimmer touched the Matterhorn. Then all grew gray and colorless. Day was done. A shudder passed over us both.

Our unusual experience has drawn us very near, dear Flora, and I appreciate his "blissness of spirit; but I do not love him—yet. Ever fondly,

JEAN.

CAPTURED GIANT SEA-COW

Monster Taken by Fishermen Weighs 3,000 Pounds and Is Twelve Feet Long.

Point Isabel, Tex.—Mexican fishermen had an exciting encounter with a monster, a giant sea-cow, in the shallow water of the Laguna Madre near here recently. It was captured only after one of the men, Ramon Rodriguez, had been seriously hurt by one of its flippers.

The creature was 12 feet long and weighed more than 3,000 pounds. It is being kept alive and promises to survive for some time.

The sea-cow is supposed to have come up from the more southern waters of the gulf. It entered the Laguna Madre at the pass which separates the island from the mainland and was seen by the fishermen struggling in a shallow part of the strip of water.

A boat with three men went out to capture it. When they got close to it Rodriguez climbed out of the boat and attempted to put a rope around the monster's fin and was knocked unconscious by a blow from one of its flippers. He would have drowned had he not been dragged into the boat by his companions. The rope was finally fastened and the monster was towed ashore. It is the second of its kind captured in the Laguna Madre in the last few weeks.

These animals are quite numerous along the coast 150 to 200 miles south of here. They are adapted to both salt and fresh water. 20 other creatures of the appearance in the waters along the coast is that they are usually accompanied by a school of sea devils, great sea monsters frequently weighing as much as 4,500 pounds each. One of them when harpooned has been known to drag 20 boats, hatched tandem, each carrying two men.

Such an experience came two or three years ago at Aransas Pass to a party of fishermen, among whom were John W. Robbins, then state treasurer; W. G. Sterrett, present state game, fish and oyster commissioner, and J. W. Maxwell of Austin, a noted big game hunter and fisherman. They were fishing just off the little town of Tarpon when a sea devil of extraordinary size came to the surface near one of the boats. A boatman sank a harpoon deep into its body, the harpoon being secured to the boat by a line. The sea devil made off at lightning speed. As the boat to which it was attached passed the boats each threw a line, and 20 other boats, carrying 40 men, were towed by the giant animal. They had stuck to it for six hours, when it headed out toward the coast. Then the men raised the signal of distress and a life-saving crew on Harbor Island rowed out and shot the monster.

A quick cure for coughs and colds, it's the most safe and reliable medicine for many throat and lung troubles—croup, bronchitis, croup, whooping cough, quinsy, tonsillitis, hemorrhages. A trial will convince you. 50 cts. and $1.00. Guaranteed by all druggists.

Constipation, if Neglected, Causes Serious Illness. Constipation, if neglected, leads to almost innumerable complications affecting the general health. Many cases of typhoid fever, appendicitis and other severe diseases are traceable to prolonged clogging of the bowels. Regarding this crisis of constipation, C. E. Ayers, of Sabin Springs, Montpelier, Vt., says: "I was afflicted with constipation and biliousness for years, and at times became so bad I would become unconscious. I have been found in that condition many times. Physicians did not seem to be able to do me any good. I would become weak and for days at a time could do no work. Not long ago I got a box of Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets and after using them found I had never tried anything that suited me so much a mild and effective manner. I believe I have at last found the remedy that suits my case."

Thousands of people are sufferers from habitual constipation and while possibly realizing something of the danger of this condition, yet neglect too long to employ proper curative measures until serious illness often results. The advice of all physicians is, "keep your bowels clear, and it's good."

Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are sold by all druggists, at 25 cents a box, containing 25 doses. If not found satisfactory, your money is returned.

At a meeting held Tuesday of last week the Jefferson County Fiscal Court, upon a report from the County Attorney as to the legality of the act, voted in favor of meeting the U. S. government half way by employing a farm expert for Jefferson county. The government will pay $1,200 and the Fiscal Court $1,200 as salary to the man selected.

The Courier-Journal says editorially concerning the matter: "The Fiscal Court has acted wisely in meeting the United States Government half way in the matter of providing an expert farm demonstrator for Jefferson county. The court is to be commended for its unanimous vote in favor of the appropriation. In Jefferson county, as elsewhere in the State, we need to know more about scientific farming, and as Jefferson is the wealthiest and most populous county in Kentucky it is highly appropriate that we should be right at the front in the campaign for more crops and better crops."

On Sunday, October 13, will occur the feast of St. Edwards, the patronal feast of St. Edwards church. Fine services will be held Sunday morning at 10:15, and benediction will be given in the afternoon at 3:15. Attends Re-Dedication of Christian Church in Jeffersontown Sunday.

The re-dedication of the Jefferson town Christian church last Sunday brought out a large crowd from all parts of Jefferson county and many from Louisville. The church has been greatly improved by having the walls repaired and painted and workmen are now busily engaged in installing a furnace. The pews will be painted and the church overhauled improved.

Rev. H. M. Hopkins, of Cincinnati, delivered a splendid address in the morning at 11 o'clock, after which he called for a contribution of $1,000 to cover the costs of repairing the church building. The people responded liberally and the amount was almost raised at the morning service. One pleasing feature of the occasion was the good fellowship and fraternal spirit manifested by the Middletown Christian Sunday-school and all the local Sunday-schools in subscribing to the fund. The full amount needed was subscribed before the day was over.

The bountiful dinner served at one o'clock by the people of Jefferson town was greatly enjoyed by the large crowd and there was enough left to feed many more. The reputation of the Jefferson town ladies for hospitality along this line was again proven, and everybody went away praising them for their liberality.

Dr. E. L. Powell, of Louisville, preached one of the most eloquent and practical sermons in the afternoon ever heard in Jeffersontown. The singing was a special feature of the services, and the day will be long remembered by everyone in attendance. Rev. J. J. Cole, the pastor, and the congregation are to be congratulated for the improvements they have made to the church.

Mattingly-Carey. This morning at 9:15 o'clock there was a solemn nuptial mass at St. Edwards church, the occasion being the marriage of Mr. William Mattingly and Miss Mary Carey. Mr. Mattingly is a resident of Axtell, Ky., and Miss Carey is a member of St. Edwards' parish.

Phillip Swan Dies. Phillip Presley Swan, aged forty years, died Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock after a lingering illness of paralysis. Deceased had been in ill health for about a year and his death had been expected for some time. For the past few months he had been at the home of his father, Mr. L. J. Swan, on the Seatonville Road. He is survived by a wife and five children, mother and father, three brothers and five sisters. Funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Wm. L. Burger at the Lutheran church Friday morning at 10 o'clock. M. W. A., Portland Camp No. 402, of which he was a member, will have charge of the services at the grave, after which the remains will be laid to rest in the Lutheran cemetery here.

State S. S. Convention. The Kentucky Sunday-school Association will hold its forty-eighth State Convention at Paducah October 30 to November 1, 1912. This association is represented by all Sunday schools in the State, and one of the most successful conventions of its history is expected.

RAILWAY COMPANY

Cannot Give Audubon Park Residents Better Service Than They Are Getting Now.

The Courier-Journal recently said: "It is a simple matter of business, and we cannot give better service than they are getting now."

Thus the superintendent of transportation makes reply for the Louisville & Interurban Railway Company when residents of the Audubon Park section register a protest against what they consider inadequate car service.

Of course it is "simply a matter of business." Of course the Louisville Railway Company cannot undertake to provide car service suitable to the demands of domestic servants, with a view to keeping the Audubon Park section supplied with those elusive luxuries of modern life, urban, suburban and rural.

But the custom of running late cars four evenings a week and none upon the other three evenings, a custom that seems to be a rather well-established policy of the Louisville & Interurban Railway Company, is bad business.

It is, assuredly, not a system calculated to stimulate the settlement of territory that feeds the railway company. A very considerable number of persons who would otherwise like to have homes beyond the coal smoke zone decline to consider going out into the country to live where they will be allowed by the Louisville & Interurban Railway Company to come to town to spend the evening upon stated evenings only, as sailors from men-of-war "make a liberty" ashore.

The meager evening service upon nearly all of the lines extending into the country is enough to deter any but the hardiest lovers of country life from living out of town all of the year or part of the year. Of course a corporation, living upon dividends, cannot establish a service to accommodate its patrons. Of course no railway company cares a rap, or can be expected to care a rap, about the convenience of persons who live upon its lines. Railway companies are not, as the saying goes, in business for their health. But would the added cost of late cars not be more than met within a short time by the settlement of territory now closed to all persons who are not willing to come to town to spend the evening upon stated evenings only, as sailors from men-of-war "make a liberty" ashore.

It is business, of course, but not twentieth century business to allow country car service to follow the trail of development, instead of causing development to follow the establishment of encouraging car service.

Surely every line out of Louisville upon which it is business to run late cars three or four evenings a week would, as a result of being given late cars seven evenings a week and fifty-two weeks a year, grow sufficiently in patronage to more than make up the expense of the late cars for the residents of every line are clamoring.

Timely Seed Corn Hints.

At this particular season it is well to have the attention not only of the members of agricultural clubs, but also of the general farmers, called to the importance of getting a good supply of seed corn for next year. The fate of next year's crop will be largely determined by the action taken by the farmer within the next few days. Seed corn testing is highly important, and should not be neglected, but it is well to remember that unless seed corn is properly cared for, the test next spring will only reveal the sad fact that the seed corn is very poor and that a perfect stand cannot be assured.

There are a good many things to take into consideration in selecting seed corn. These points concern not only the ear itself but the stalk upon which it was grown; hence it is desirable that the seed corn should be selected from the field before the corn is cut if possible.

Seed corn should be selected in the fall just as it is coming to maturity. Select well developed ears growing upon well developed and vigorous stalks, and of the same maturity. Mark them and allow them to mature. Do not select large ears from stalks that have grown in hills by themselves, that have been recently favored in the way of rich soil or have been favored in regard to moisture present, but prefer those that have produced most heavily when growing under average conditions. Other things being equal, select ears from short, thick stalks rather than from tall slender ones, as the latter are more likely to be blown down. Never select an ear that is extremely long of shank, but rather select one of a medium shank with the tip pointing downward at an angle of about 45 degrees. Prefer ears that do not have a gross, coarse, heavy husk.

Those boys' and girls' clubs that have come under the direction of the State University Extension Division of the College of Agriculture have noticed that they were designated "agricultural clubs" and not "club clubs." The reason for this is that boys' and girls' clubs in their respective counties should be fixed organizations through which many good things may be taught to them and other people, the club itself being a working factor to put into operation those things proposed by the director of the work. In this connection a hand book of instruction has been prepared for these clubs, including certain definite exercises in corn growing, animal husbandry, dairying, horticulture, poultry, potato growing and domestic science.

The work of instructing and looking after these clubs has recently been provided for on a better basis than ever before, and as good as our work has been in the past it is hoped that it may be made better in the near future. Letters regarding the extension of the work of the University has been divided into three sections, all operating under one head. The boys' and girls' club work has been assigned as a division to Dr. Fred Matchler, of Bowling Green, Kentucky, stationed at the Western Normal School.

Co-operation is now being lent by the Federal Government and by various individuals and corporations interested. Letters regarding club work should be sent to Dr. Matchler directly.

No club should neglect this year to have a good show of various farm products, as the crops have been in. Assistance in such undertakings will be freely given on application to the Extension Division.

15 Acres of Beautiful Land

well improved in every respect. We could call it Garden Land, and not exaggerate. And a general assortment of personal property, embracing Stock, Implements, Wagons, Surreys, Runabouts, Household effects, and most everything needed in housekeeping or on a farm.

Having decided to move to Louisville, we will on the above mentioned date and date at my residence in Jefferson County, Ky., 10 miles Southeast of Louisville, sell to the highest and best bidder the hereinafter described property. This farm is located about 10 miles West of Beulah Church, Bardonia pike and Fern Creek Electric Car Line, and within one-quarter mile of Pennsylvania Run Church, and within 11 miles of Pleasant Grove Church, and 21 miles of Oak Station, Electric Car Line, Preston Street Pike and adjoining the well known farms of W. A. Smith, T. J. Rush, Dr. A. Bates and Charlie Cummins. Good place to live. The personal property consists in part as follows:

1 Good Work Mule, 2 Milk Cows, 1 Jersey Heifer, 1 Fat Hog, 1 Two Horse Spring Wagon, Wings, Pole shafts, 1 Surrey, 1 Runabout, 1 Corn Planter, 2 and 2 Horse Plows, Harrows, 1 Mowing Machine, Deering, Cultivators, Double Shovel, etc., Forks, Hoes, Shovels, etc., Cross Cut and Hand Saws, Lot of Lumber, Grindstone, etc., Posthole Digger and Onion Sieves.

The Farm as above mentioned is 15 Acres, each and every foot of it is tillable, and the present growing crop will demonstrate the character of the soil. Two acres in strawberries, 2 acres in Blackberries, 2 acres in peaches. Remainder in garden products and grass. The improvements consist of a four room cottage, three porches and cellar. Good Stable, Corn Crib and Sheds upon either side of each, furnishing ample room for Wagons, Buggies, implements and storage for Potatoes, Onion, etc. Also all other necessary outbuildings, all of which knew. In addition to the above, we can truthfully say that there is no finer soil of drink water in the county. A small amount of peach trees of select varieties. This home is one of the most lovely and attractive that I have ever had the pleasure of advertising. The neighborhood has few equals. Churches and schools convenient. Rural Route passes the door. Parties in need of a little home, would and it to their interest to call and examine this property before day of sale, as there is no one else's home.

TERMS ON PERSONAL PROPERTY: $10 and under, cash; over that amount a credit of nine months without interest; notes with approved security, payable at the Jefferson County Bank, Jeffersontown, Ky.

TERMS ON REAL ESTATE: One-third cash, remainder in one or two years, interest from date of sale. Down payment in 30 days from date of sale. A cash deposit of $2000 is required of purchaser as evidence of good faith.

N. B.—THIS EXCELLENT FARM IS NOT SOLD, IT WILL BE RENTED.
